The One Behind

INTRO

4 bars
Same as first verse

Man lives in a wooden box one hundred feet above the rocks.
His stairs are made from root and stone.
An ever changing sea gives him everything he needs.
He makes a fire from a fallen tree*

VERSE

16 bars
*1 extra bar here
Drums start on "man trips..."

Man trips on his fishing pole. One hundred feet the blackest hole.
He's swallowed by the raging sea.
A falling tide takes him out so fast. He's praying it won't be his last
But the water spans out endlessly.

He loses site of his home.
But for the moon he's all alone.
He just about makes it over the crest of the first giant wave but

The one behind (is blocking out the moon)
The one behind (bearing down upon him soon)
The one behind (pulling him out with thirty tonnes of sand)

Strong arms take him quickly down. There's water swirling all around.
He's heading for the ocean floor.
He's ripped from there and moved around. It's a miracle he does not drown.
Swimming up he feels like lead.

He strains to see signs of his home
But for now he's all alone
Floating in a mix of sparking bioluminescent foam from the back of the second giant wave.

And the one behind is blocking out the moon;
bearing down upon him soon;
sucking him out with thirty tonnes of sand

Ah....
Yeah

He cannot face the depths again. His arms are tired and his lungs are drained.
He turns to face the coming wave.
It lifts him up three stories high – the sea spray stinging in his eye.
He's certain now he can't be saved.

He drops down with impressive weight but still he does not penetrate.
He glides along the water dune.
Three miles he rides towards the land, carving the water with his hands.
He's beaming at the swollen moon.

He catches sight of his home.
But for the moon he's all alone.
He just about makes it back to shore on the face of that perfect giant wave but

The Road To Nowhere

VERSE
Sudden start

Come quick
There's a body in the river
Rust beneath a mirror

They don't think
It's been there for very long
But the current's pretty strong

Maybe
It's the girl who disappeared
Earlier in the year

I can't see
Now the crowd is getting thicker.
They jostle and they bicker

This is the road to nowhere...

You.
You with the black suit tie and a gleam in your eye for you sit so high...
No matter how many time we occupy, you exemplify the means...
To the end of this game, you have no shame, you take no blame and it's all the same
If every man woman child in the world has to fight just to ease the pain.
Peace. It's not a four-letter word and it's the that we heard about - how you gonna work with the enemy?
To make a world where the pain and the war and the stress isn't gonna be the end of my love.
Be a sign of the times. Rewind the lies right in front of our eyes.
I see the sun coming up behind flashing lights surrounding burning tires and desperate people.
Get off the road.
Come on.
To nowhere.
